

Graduate School of Education

Major:

- Educational Administration
- Korean Language Education
- Computer Education
- Counseling Psychology
- English Education
- Mathematics Education
- History Education
- Integrated Science Education
- Lifelong Education
- Higher Education Administration
- Early Childhood Education
- Special Education
- Primary English Education
- e-Learning
- Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages
- Gifted Education
- General Education/Teacher Training
- Psychotherapy Education
- Special Education and Support Service

Introduction

Founded in 1995 with an aim for the cultivation of competent teachers and retraining of professional and special school teachers to respond to a rapidly changing educational environment and new demands for education, the Graduate School of Education celebrated its 17th anniversary in 2012. The cultivation of sound teachers who are willing to take responsibility as its goal, the school has grown remarkably with 18 majors, 645 students, and some 1,134 graduates. The school offers a variety of programs for various majors including Educational Administration, Korean Language Education, Computer Education, Counseling Psychology, English Language Education, French Language Education, Mathematics Education, History Education, General Sociology Education, General Science Education, Continuing Education, Health Education, University Administrative Management, Special Education, Child Education, General Education/Teacher Training, e-Learning, Youth Education, and Elementary English Language Education.

Goal of Education

Innovation-oriented educators

- cultivation of educators with the global mindsets who lead educational reform.

Field-oriented educators

- cultivation of educators who thrive in the field with practical education.

Demand-oriented educators

- cultivation of educators who take demands into consideration as much as possible.

Information-oriented educators

- cultivation of educators sensitive to the latest educational trends and information.

Professionalism-oriented educators

- cultivation of educators with expertise and professionalism.

Development-oriented educators

- cultivation of educators who continue to learn and expand their own teaching capacity.

Love-oriented educators - cultivation of educators with love for education and people.